What grows when it eats but dies when it drinks?

TEFILLAH OF THE WEEK

-רבה אמונתך
Great is your faithfulness

שהחזרת בי נשמתי בחמלה
For you have graciously returned my soul within me

B'KITZUR By: Daniel Moskovits

There is a fundamental concept of the Torah - שויתי ה' לנגדי תמיד - I have put HaShem before myself constantly. Whatever you do know that HaShem is watching and you should act properly.

Short Halacha from this week's Kitzur Shulchan Aruch Yomi - Chapter 1 Se'if 1

The Gemara reminds us that if Reuven knew he would be praised forever in Chumash for his attempt to save his brother Yosef, he would have carried him on his shoulders to safety! What stops us from going all the way many times in doing something great is the lack of understanding of the importance each and every act has and how far into the future each act can resonate.

CRAZY ANIMAL CORNER By: Gabriella and Mikayla

Polecat

1. It has a super-stinky secret weapon

Imagine a skunk's smelly spray—a polecat has something just like it! When this little animal gets scared, it can shoot a very stinky, powerful smell from its bottom. It's like a secret, smelly superpower that makes big, scary animals want to run away as fast as they can.

2. It's like a wild, fuzzy cousin to a ferret

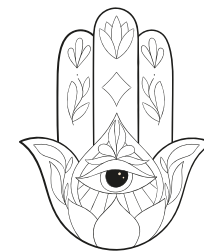

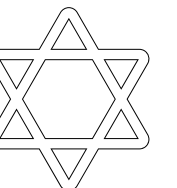

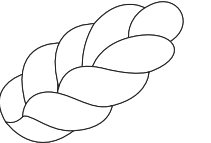

Did you know that pet ferrets are related to polecats? Polecats are like the wild cousins of ferrets and are super-smart hunters. For a long, long time, people used the super-fast and skinny ferrets to help them hunt rabbits.

3. It has a spooky food storage system

Polecats are clever hunters. They sometimes bite their prey on the neck just hard enough to make them paralyzed but not kill them completely. This is like putting their food in a magical, live "refrigerator" so it stays fresh until they are ready to eat it.
